

Free & exclusively for SNDA members

Writing & Publishing A Manuscript

1 CE
CREDIT*December 2, 2023
1:00 - 2:30*REGISTER HERE

"Writing and Publishing a Manuscript," presented by Charles Lew, Principal Dietitian, is an insightful lecture guiding researchers through the process of scientific manuscript writing and publication. It emphasizes creating a strong introduction, formulating hypotheses, and effectively discussing research findings. The lecture also covers practical aspects such as manuscript submission, dealing with peer reviews, and strategies for promoting published work. This session is crucial for researchers aiming to enhance their writing skills and understand the publication process, ensuring their work has a significant impact in the scientific community.

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Charles Lew is a principal dietitian at Ng Teng Fong General Hospital, and an adjunct assistant professor at the Singapore Institute of Technology for the Nutrition and Dietetics program. He is also a member of the Critical Care Nutrition international research group, and an editorial board member of the Journal of Parenteral and Enteral Nutrition. Charles completed a PhD at Flinders University in 2019, and has published more than 30 articles. His research interest includes risk classification, malnutrition, nutrition support, and refeeding syndrome.

Registration Closes
December 1, 2023, 11:59 PM